Smoke Sickle Plug—if you like real tobacco.

It's time and weather proof as far as tobacco can be—keeps its true tobacco flavor and moisture. This is not true of any other form of tobacco, because the firm plug and natural-leaf wrapper are the best possible protections against dried-out, hot-smoking tobacco.

Convenient, too. Size just right. Then there's nothing to spill from pouch or package.

Envy.

My teacher says that I'm the best and smartest boy in school. I'm never careless, like the rest; I never break a rule. If visitors should come to call she has me speak a piece. Or tell what makes an apple fall. Or bound the coast of Greece.

You might expect that, since my brain holds such an awful lot, I'd be extremely proud and vain. But, oh, indeed I'm not! For Willie Brown's a cleverer lad than I am. He'd give anything I had to be as smart as he.

He can't recite "Hark, hark, the lark!" It's not the teacher's pet. He never gets a perfect mark in arithmetic, and yet could I be he'd waste no tears. On football things like sums, for Willie Brown can wag his ears and dislocate his thumbs.

Self Evident.

Liz—Wot makes 'em go up in the air, them things?

Alf—W'y, the blinkin' hijnin, yer silly kid.

Liz—Well, ain't motors got hijnins?

Alf—Course they 'as, but they ain't got no wings, 'ave 'em?

Liz—Then it's the wings as makes 'em go up, ain't it?

Alf—Pawty. Well, it's like this: They runs along the ground a bit, an' then the wind gits under the wings, an' hup they go! See?

Liz—Wunnerful, ain't it?

Alf—Jest about.

Liz—An' 'ow do they come dahn, then, Alf?

Alf—W'y, stop the hijnin, o' course.

Liz—But 'ow can they git the wind aht from under the wings?

Alf—Well, frinstance—well, 'ow does a bird do it?

Liz—I dunno.

Alf—You seen a bird, I s'pose, ain't yer?

Liz—Eaps.

Alf—An' you seen a bird come dahn, I s'pose?

Liz—Oh, yus; I seen that!

Alf—Well, then, don't arst sich stilly queschuns.—Fall Mail Gazette.

MORE AGAINST HANFORD.

Ballinger Also Involved in Testimony Against Federal Judge.

Seattle, Wash., July 11.—The judicial conduct of Federal Judge C. H. Hanford in the bankruptcy case of Hockman and Hansen, shipbuilders, occupied the time yesterday in the House judiciary subcommittee hearing to determine whether impeachment proceedings shall lie against the judge. Attorney Jerry Landon Finch, the complaining witness, was on the stand all day. Finch accused Judge Hanford of unjustified conduct in his refusal to open the estate of the bankrupt firm and in the whole conduct of the case. Incidentally Finch charged that Richard A. Ballinger, former secretary of the interior, appeared first as attorney for the maker of a note and shortly afterward as counsel for a bank that foreclosed a mortgage by which the note was secured. Finch testified that the five creditors with claims of $23, who petitioned Judge Hanford to have the estate closed, were mostly clerks in Ballinger's office.

Stanley C. Wilson has sold the Harvey Sanborn place on Main street, which he purchased last spring of Mrs. Nathan J. Hill, to Arthur H. Camp of East Randolph, who purchases the same for a home and will move here soon.

The Fourth of July passed into history as a record-breaker for a safe and sane Fourth in this town. Despite the extreme heat, there was a large crowd of people from the hillsides and the adjoining towns assembled to celebrate the day. The field sports which were scheduled for the forenoon were pulled off according to program. The procession of horribles, headed by the Chelsea brass band, drew forth the cheers of the people and the automobile parade was patronized well by way of entries. The baseball game between the local team and a picked team from South Royalton, which included the umpire, was hard fought from start to finish and was a decidedly interesting game, which resulted in the visiting team carrying off the honors by a score of 9 to 7. The band concert at 7 o'clock in the evening was very much enjoyed by a large throng of people, which at the conclusion of the concert filled the opera house to the very doors to witness the presentation of "The King of the Philippines," by the New Chelsea Dramatic company. While the play had no deep plot, yet it was mirth provoking and catchy and kept the house roaring a good share of the time. At the close of the drama, the company held a social ball, which was largely patronized, and all had a very enjoyable time. Music for the play and dance was furnished by the local Chelsea brass band orchestra, and as usual the members put up a good article.

COLONEL MEETS TARIFF ISSUE

Learns People Want Reductions and He is for Them

WOULD CUT DOWN RATES

The Colonel Will Soon Issue a Statement
Regarding the Tariff and Other
Campaign Issues—Supporters
Favor Quick Action.

Oyster Bay, July 11.—Immediate downward revision of the tariff is likely to be one of the demands of the party headed by Col. Roosevelt. According to the present program, action will be urged to revise those schedules which are obviously high. The woolen and cotton schedules are perhaps the best examples.

Roosevelt has been told that the sentiment of the country, especially in the West, where his largest support is expected, emphatically favors quick action on the tariff.

Roosevelt said yesterday that he will soon issue a statement regarding the tariff and other campaign issues.

CASE INVOLVES $14,000.

In Which Insurance Company Seeks to Recover from Execution.

Burlington, July 11.—The taking of testimony was completed yesterday in the chancery case of Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company vs. Emma H. Bishop before Chancellor Willard W. Miles. The sum involved is $14,000, and the original cause for the action dates back to 1871.

The story begins in that year, when the late Daniel B. Bishop, a farmer of Jericho, took out a paid-up life insurance policy in the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company for $20,000; the benefit clauses being his three minor children.

In 1877, Mr. Bishop decided that he wanted the money then, and made a deal with the insurance company, whereby he surrendered the policy for a consideration paid him by the company. His oldest son was of age and voluntarily signed away his right under the policy. The father signed away the rights of the two minor children as their "natural" guardian.

In 1891, Mr. Bishop having married his second wife, arranged it so that his property should be transferred to himself and wife jointly. In the event of his death the property would revert to Mrs. Bishop. The husband died in 1900.

Some time later the two who were minor children when the policy was surrendered brought suit against the insurance company, claiming that $14,000 was due them, their share as beneficiaries under the old insurance policy, their claim being that their father had no right at law as a "natural" guardian to sign away their rights. They obtained a judgment in Chittenden county court, and in 1911 the same was affirmed by supreme court. The judgment against the insurance company being $14,133.33 and costs of $48.02.

Then the Phoenix company brought a bill and injunction in chancery against the widow of Mr. Bishop, who is executrix of the estate of her husband, Daniel B. Bishop, seeking to recover the amount which they were compelled to pay the two children, claiming that Mr. Bishop's act of signing away his minor children's benefit did not release his liability to them, and was fraudulent according to law. This is the case which has been heard here this week, and the principal question seems to be, Of what does the estate proper of the late Daniel B. Bishop consist? Mrs. Bishop, the defendant, is now the owner of the homestead place, valued at between $3,000 and $4,000.
